You can't not have a reaction to this book! Based on over thirty years of conversations and interactions with Americans and Asians, Korean American Eun Kim presents American virtues and vices from an Asian perspective, using the ancient Asian concepts of yin and yang, which coexist in everything and complete each other to maintain cosmic harmony. In this way, Kim draws us to look at the yang (light) mirror of American vices and the yin (dark) mirror or American virtues. Examples of the virtues she discusses are generosity, competitive spirit, openness, and volunteerism. Some of the vices she explores are insistence on rights, refusal to grow up, arrogance, and tolerance of violence. In her fifty entries, the author describes and illustrates an American value and provides an Asian perspective on it as well as what she believes to be the dangers and opportunities inherent to each value. She uses personal experience, anecdotes and quotes from Asians and Americans both famous and unknown, historical background, general wisdom, and proverbs to enrich her writing. Eun Kim straddles two cultures, her Asian homeland and her adopted country, the United States. This is a highly personal and readable book, with insights that may make the American reader squirm uncomfortably in one paragraph and glow with pride in the next.

"It was in the beginning of my career in the US. I worked doing alarm installations in New York and got a coworker. About my age, so 43-45 years old. Baby-like eyes, pink cheeks, loves animals. Said, if he sees someone hurt an animal, he'll bury the bully alive. And looks at me just so. Also he loves women. But it is another kind of love; he doesn't care if someone hurts a woman. Next thing he says: "Alarm systems are my life." And then, that communications are his life. I got somewhat wary. So, what is the mission of your life? Do you have a priority, maybe? He replied that grub is the priority in his life. Then I got it, of course. And asked, if he's by any chance an officer. He cackled happily: "A captain. How did you guess." By his eyes, of course. Obviously, his head is filled with "Garrison standard operating procedures." And nothing else matters..." Short stories of russian trucker. Ironic, funny and real. Like life. Sometimes I thought that all this was unreal, like I'm inside of a movie about me. So funny. And sad.

China has become one of the largest study and teach-abroad, travel, and business destinations in the world. Yet few books offer a diversity of perspectives and locales for Westerners considering the leap. This unique collection of letters offers a rarely seen, intimate, and refreshingly honest view of living and working in China. Here, ordinary people--recent college graduates, teachers, professors, engineers, lawyers, computer whizzes, and parents--recount their experiences in venues ranging from classrooms to marketplaces to holy mountains. The writers are genuine participants in the daily life of their adopted country, and woven throughout their correspondence is the compelling theme of outsiders coping in a culture that is vastly foreign to them and the underlying love-hate struggle it engenders. We follow their initial highs; the shift to general discomfort and then to full-blown culture shock; and slowly, the return of a sense of balance, identity, and normalcy; and finally, the decision to return home or stay. Written in a down-to-earth, personal, often humorous, always authentic style, these tales of trials, successes, and failures offer invaluable insight into a country that remains endlessly fascinating.

In Everything I Understand about America I Learned in Chinese Proverbs, Wendy Liu tells her experiences and views of America;its life, issues, politics, and China relations;with a Chinese angle. Following a dispute over free speech, for instance, she recalled the Chinese proverb ;A great person;s heart is big enough to pole a boat in; and realized that a big heart was what everyone needed to tolerate differences in America. Observing controversies between the U.S. and China, she felt that with America;s complex relationship with the Middle Kingdom, it would be helpful if Americans were not sometimes ;seeing trees only, but not the forest,; another Chinese proverb.
